1. About the Journal
The Journal of Northeast Asian History (JNAH) is a multidisciplinary forum for the investigation of social and political affairs in the Northeast Asian region.

2. Subject
Our subject is Northeast Asia as a geographic zone of intense interactions and contested internal divisions rather than the separate national histories of the region's constituent states. As such, we seek to showcase research on flows and networks in the region and studies that question traditional boundaries. We adopt a wide view of the scope of historical research. We are interested particularly in examinations of the past that comment on the present as well as historically-grounded research on contemporary issues. We welcome papers from a range of disciplinary perspectives, including from history, geography, political science, anthropology, and sociology.

3. Length
Submitted manuscripts, including footnotes and illustrations, should be approximately thirty pages (8000-9000 words) in length and be double-spaced with 12-point type and 1 inch margins including notes and references.

4. Frequency
JNHA publishes biannually in June and December.

5. Submission
Submit one copy of the manuscript and an academic CV in English as a Microsoft Word file to journal.jnah@snu.ac.kr
All submitted manuscripts will be considered on the understanding that they are original and that any similar or related material has not been submitted or published elsewhere.
The submitted manuscript is reviewed by 3 referees (or more) before publication.
